The acquisition by Klaw & Erlanger of a half interest in the Heilig Theatre, Portland, Ore., which indicates active participation in theatricals in the far West and Northwest, has been followed by the organisation of a Pacific coast traveilling stock company by Joseph Montrose, manager of the Morosco Theatre in Los Angeles, He will be interested with Klaw & Erlanger in the entergise, under whose direction the company will be sent on tour.

Its efforts will not be devoted only to the usual stock repertoire, but it will produce original plays. The scenery and equipment will be assembled in Los Angeles. The company will begin its tour the latter part of next month at the Columbia Theatre, San Francisco, playing there for four or five weeks, with an engagement in Los Angeles to follow. After that its time will be occupied between Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Intervening towns.

Klaw & Erlanger have already sent to Mr. Montrose Sydney Rosenfeld's "Under Pressure" and "Here Comes the Bride" by Max Marcin and Roy Atwell, both of which will probably be produced in the far West before New York sees them. The gymnasium had been converted into a serviceable enough auditorium and the acoustics were satisfying for that part of the audience seated in front of the stage. But that was unfortunately not as large as it might have been, and there was a continuous craning of necks from the side lines. The gymnasium was well enough filled to insure financial success to the first audience, which manifested its approval in mighty demonstrations for the singera.
Artistically a certain measure of suc-

The summer season of opera at Columbia University began last night and by wise prevision of its promoters in the symnasium of the college and not in the open air, under the shadow of Joseph Urban's colored lanterns. So a downpour which came as the opera began did no more than drench those ignorant visitors who wandered about the performance.

The aviation fund of the National Special Aid Society is to benefit from the proceeds of the season. So there was a speech by Representative G. Murray Hulbert, who was introduced by Rear Admiral Piske to precede the overture. There were venders of programmes and tobacce for the aid of the fund and they were able to set to their task with success during the intermiseions, as the rain had by that time ceased and the atmosphere of the hall made the fresh air invitins.

LEADING FINANCIER

Fritz von Friedlaender-Fuld Was Favorite of Kaiser-Had Huge Fortune.

AMSTERDAM, July 17.—A Berlin des-patch to-day reports the death there of Fritz won Friedlaender-Fuld, a widely known coal and oil magnate.

Fritz von Friedlaender-Fuld was the John D. Rockefeller of Germmy and a prime favorite of the Kaleer. Born and prime inverte of the Raiser. Sori and raised a member of the Jewish faith, he took hold of his father's coal business at the death of the parent and found the affairs in a sadly tangled state. He succeeded in borrowing sufficient capital succeeded in corrowing summent capital from relatives to pay off the debts of the concern and then reorganized the business. He extended his lines and soon controlled the richest coal fields in Pruscia and Austrian Bliesia. This was the foundation of the colossal fortune he accumulated and at the time of his death umulated, and at the time of his death

cumulated, and at the time of his death he was regarded as the leading captain of finance in the German Empire.
His wife possessed a considerable fortune in her own right and was the heiress of a wealthy Jew of Amsterdam.
Her name was Fuld. They lived in one of the most palatial establishments in Berlin, and the stables are second only to those of his sovereign.

When the Kaiser elevated Von Fried laender-Fuld to the Herrenhaus or upper chamber of the legislature for Prus-eia the coal baron and his wife re-nounced the Jewish faith and adopted that of the Roman Catholic Church. This was necessary in order to take his seat in the Herrenhaus. He was frequently a guest of the Kaiser at his Berlin palace and country estates and always was selected to start the subscription lists for any of the royal charties.

The Von Friedlaender-Fulds had only The Von Friedlaender-Fulds had only one chift, a daughter, who several years ago was married to the Hon. John Mitford, a younger son of Lord Redesdale, whom she met while he was in Berlin to study its banking system. The bride's father settled $10,000,000 on her as a wadding present. The young couple quarrelled on the wedding trip and have lived apart ever since. The bride returned to the home of her parents in Berlin and assumed her maiden name. Her husband received a commission in the Royal Horse Guards and has been at the battle front since the start of the war fighting the Germans. war fighting the Germans.
